Cameron Livestock Auction Sale To Re-Open January 6

Livestock and related items will again be sold by auction in Cameron starting January 6 at the newly refinished Cameron Livestock Auction barn recently purchased by Lester and Jack Lawhorn, who have operated the Temple Livestock Auction for almost 20 years.

The beautifully redecorated offices of the concern, razed by fire in 1953, will house a staff of personnel headed by O. A. White, manager, to conduct the Thursday auction sales and the sale of hogs every day except Sunday.

Ringman Jack Lawhorn will handle the auctioneering from the livestock pen which has a capacity of 1,100 to 1,200 head and commission rates as follows: Cattle and Hogs - Up to $16.66 - $0.50; Cattle and Hogs - $16.67 to $33.33 - $1.00; Cattle and Hogs - $33.34 and up- 3 per cent; Horses and Mules - 3 per cent with a $1.00 minimum; Sheep and Goats - 30 cents per head up to 10 head, over 10 head 25 cents per head; Miscellaneous items - five per cent; Brand Inspection will be eight cents per head regardless of whether sold or passed out.

The seating capacity of the sales arena is estimated to be between 350 and 400 persons, with the section nearest the ring reserved for buyers as needed and includes 127 opera chairs.

The rest of the seating capacity is in bleachers, which are at balcony level.

All of the arena, offices and lobby are air conditioned, with year-round air conditioning, which the Lawhorns and White said they hope will provide year round comfort to those who patronize, visit or work at the auction barn.

There will be from 29 to 32 persons employeed on sale days and two persons on duty every day.

Melvin Ford will operate a sandwich and drink stand on the ground on sale day with soft drinks, coffee, barbecue sandwiches and other kinds of sandwiches available. This stand will be open at 4 a.m. on sale days and remain open the entire day each Thursday.

In a statement from the Lawhorns they specified that it has already been their pleasure to serve a great number of Milam County and surrounding area livestock producers in trying to provide as good a market as can be found in this area.

The same policy which has been established at the Temple sale will be maintained at the Cameron Livestock Auction.

Mr. White has been with this company as office manager and accountant for nearly nine years.

They concluded with, "The management of this new livestock auction sale is looking forward to serving the people of this area with much anticipation.

Mrs. Carl Black Killed By Santa Fe Train

SCENE OF TRAGEDY: Shown is the scattered remains of the 1952 Ford owned by Martha Virginia Black and driven by Mrs. Carl Black when she was killed instantly, after its collision with the Santa Fe Chief about four miles south-east of Cameron on the Hanover road. Parts of the car were thrown about 460 feet from the scene of the wreck. The rear of the car (upper left) was ripped completely free of the chassis and found about 50 feet away.

Car Completely Demolished; Parts Found As Far As 460 Feet Away

Mrs. Carl Black was killed instantly when her car was hit by the Santa Fe Chief No. 16 at milepost 184, the Hanover crossing, Monday at 10:55 a.m.

The impact of the collision was so forceful that parts of the car, including the spare tire, were found 460 feet from the scene of the wreck, having been in the air most of that distance.

It was estimated by S. A. Worship, Chief Dispatcher of the Santa Fe Railroad in Temple, that the train must have been traveling at about 60 miles per hour, since it was approaching the Little River Bridge where the maximum speed is 50 mph.

No confirmed reports on the cause of the accident have been received, since the engineers on the train were apparently the only witnesses and they could not be contacted.

The rear portion of the body of the automobile was ripped completely free and found about 50 feet from the rest of the chassis.

Mrs. Black's body, which was badly mangled, was thrown out and under the car. She had been visiting with Mrs. A. F. Griffin, who lives a short distance from Cameron at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Burnett. Word was received that Mrs. Griffin died about 10 minutes after the death of Mrs. Black.

Survivors include her husband, Sheriff Carl Black; one daughter, Martha Virginia Black of Cameron; one son, Bill Black, of Cameron; her father Giles McDermott of Cameron; two brothers, Erskin McDermott of Cameron and Dr. Lyle McDermott; one sister, Mrs. R. E. Biggs of Liberty, her aunt Mrs. Winnie M. Wittliff of Cameron and many other aunts and uncles in this area.

Funeral services for Mrs. Carl Balck, 49, who died when her car was struck by a train Monday morning, December 27, were scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The rites were held in the First Presbyterian Church with Reverend John Solomon officiating.

Mrs. Black was born in Cameron on February 3, 1905 and lived here all of her life. When she graduated from Yoe High School she attended Southwest Texas State Teachers College and later taught school for a few years. She was teaching in Jones Prairie when she met her husband, Carl Black. At that time he was farming and later named deputy for Valter White and was later voted Mialm County Sheriff.

When he became Sheriff they moved into the County Jail where Mrs. Black personally supervised all of the daily activities. She zealously insisted on the best food for the prisoners and was hurrying home before the lunch hour when her car was hit, resulting in her death.

Mrs. Black had many personality assets, her friends knew her to be good, kind and very humane. She has been known as the mainstay of her church, the First Presbyterian Church, activitely interested in all the church activities and head of the womans work this year. For a number of years, in the absence of a director, she held the choir together, always actively participating.

She was also an active member of the Council of Church Women and the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Her family consisted of her son, Bill, who is now a lawyer in Cameron and her daughter, Martha Virginia, who is teaching in the University Junior High School in Austin, having taught two years in Cameron and one year in Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Black was noted for her domestic abilities and for being so devoted to her husband, spending every available minute in his company.

At the funeral one of her favorite songs "The 23rd Psalm" was sung, this has been sung at all of the funerals on her mothers side of the family for many years.

Pallbearers were August Knipp Edwin Adams, Alvin Dusek, Hugh Smith, Drayton McLane, Emory Camp, John Muse and F. E. Jackson.

Interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

The Zarosky youngster suffered only minor cuts and bruises. His companion received a head injury and remained unconscious for a short time after the accident.

Holiday guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Powell were: Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Glass, Mr. and Mrs. J. C Cauthen all of Cameron; Mr and Mrs. E. E. Odom and Jamie of Houston and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Odom and JoAnn

Democratic Committee Stresses It's Legislative Plans For '55 In Dallas

Mrs. Jud Collier, vice chairman of the Robertson County Democratic Executive Committee attended a meeting in Dallas this week of the Texas Democratic Women's State Committee.

Mrs. Collier is Chairman of the Women's committee also and has been one of the committee's ardent supporters.

The committee placed much stress on it's legislative plans for 1955, at the meeting placed elimination of cross filing from the Election Code at the tops of its legislative program. Next were four other changes in the Code: providing a Party preference notation on the poll tax receipt or exemption certificate of each voter requiring all voters not required by law to pay a poll tax to secure an exemption certificate; adoption of a consolidate primary election, the cost of which to be borne by the state and abolition of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting -- an amendment to the Constitution to be voted on at the General Election in 1956.

The committee decided to offer a general legilation platform, but to make the changes in the Election Code the subject of intensive activity. The already printed Legislative Program of the Social and Legislative Conference was adopted as the platform with two as the atform wth two addto namely, independence of the teachers Retirement System; and a appropriation for the maintenance of the Sam Houston home and grounds in Huntsville.

In addition to the legislativ work, Mrs. Collier announced there are three important education tasks for the Democratic women to undertake; (1) to ban the use of armed state police at electio and political conventions; (2) t increase the use of supervisors a the polls; and (3) to establish a standard of political morality.

Leo Fuchs Lauded In American Poultry Journal As Leghorn Breeder

In a recent issue of the American Poultry Journal the complete story of Leo Fuchs and his transition from banker to leghorn breeder and owner of Ideal Hatchery is told.

It relates how, back in 1936 Mr. Fuchs, formerly a cashier in a small town bank, purchased a small hatchery in Cameron. He had longed for some time to go into business for himself, and felt that this was his chance.

A review of his contributions to the poultry industry for the past 18 years and enumeration of his present responsibilities will bring a challenge to any young enthusiast who might be considering poultry as a life work or professional carreer.

The article told how his sons Elton and Monroe have followed in their fathers footsteps and after graduating from Texas A & M College in June, 1954, where he majored in Poultry Husbandry, Alton has joined his father in carrying on and expanding his business while Monroe has completed two years of college work, making the "Distinguished Student" list each of his semesters at A. & M., and expects to join his father and brother in the breeder and hatchery business when he graduates in 1956.

The Journal told how Leo was baffled with the problem of getting a constant supply of good quality hatching eggs from flocks free of Pullorum disease and how he joined the National Poultry Improvement Plan.

To provide a better source of hatching eggs he developed his own breeding farm and has built that small farm to one that is now trapnesting more than 4,000 pedigreed White Leghorn pullets.

For several years, Mr. Fuchs has been interested in ways of producing a bird that would lay more eggs, have less laying house mortality and give greater uniformity of performance from year to year.

When the Ideal Poultry Farm was first established, the program in wide usage was to put birds in small groups of 200-300 per house and provide yards or lots where they could be given access to green feed. Breeders were housed in small individual breeding houses for individual male mated pens. Nutritional discoveries make this no longer necessary, and Mr. Fuchs has connected the smaller houses, making big ones out of little ones. This results in an ever decreasing number of man hours needed to manage the birds. All new houses being built are large multiple unit types. He is now adding mechanical feeders and aisle

City Council Airs Privy Situation

Complaints On Outdoor Facilities Read; Culpepper Addition Discussed

With the reading of three letters of complaint concerning the odors from outdoor privies in the city limits Cameron City Councilmen aired the city-wide situation at the council meeting Tuesday night.

The letters, brought to the attention of the council by City Attorney Roy Baskin, were written the State Health Department by John Trochta and Charlie Reynolds, and were later referred to the local council for their disposal.

Gene Blake asked who the complaints were registered against and was informed that it was a blanket complaint against all the outdoor privies in that vicinity.

"Well, they have to be specific", Blake retorted, "They can't just come out and say the town stinks".

He then cited several situations within the city limits where the Sewage ordinance should be enforced, particularly in the vicinity of the Bulk Stations of the oil companies located near the railroad tracks in west Cameron. He stated, that in his opinion, that the ordinance should be enforced throughout the city.

Mayor O. B. Horstmann pointed out that many people would like to tie onto the sewer line but lacked the necessary funds to add inside facilities.

Councilman Johnny Anders stated that most of the houses which lacked sewage facilities were not homesteads, but were rent property.

Milton Schiller thoughtfully contended that actually there were two ways to look at the situation; that you couldn't force a man to tie onto the sewer if he didn't have the money to do so, yet, if by not doing so he was affecting the health of others was the council right in not enforcing the ordinance.

The mayor, usually on the side of keeping harmony among the councilmen, asked disgustedly, "Well what are you going to do with them? Tear their house down and make them move out of town?

He commented that a great number of people are tieing onto the line regularly.

Schiller said, "Yes. I really feel sorry for some of the people on the other side of Emancipation. They have approached me a number of times wanting to tie onto the sewer and willing to pay for their part, but they are unable to do so because of the slope of the land. I really wish we could do something for those people."

Since, at the outset of the meeting, only three councilmen answered the roll call no decisions were made except that Baskin said that he would contact those making the complaint and try to straighten out the difficulty.

Earlier in the evening City Engineer Kelly, present at the meeting, reported that a survey of the new sub-division proposed by Culpepper had been surveyed for a deep sewer line and the outlook was very promising since the holes dug, some as deep as 20 feet showed no signs of rock.

Schiller stated enthusiastically, "I sure would like to see that thing go through if possible."

Blake, relaxed tensely in his chair and with the air of having pondered the matter at length prior to the council meeting, said he thought the council should think about the whole thing.

"I want the development," he stated tersely, "But I want it to be fair to everybody concerned. If we go through with this subdivision it will be contrary to our action on every other project similiar to that."

The mayor reminded that Culpepper said he would be willing to bring the sewer lines up to the city limits at his own expense if he could then be assured of service.

Blake asked if the water mains had been discussed, pointing out that if the city started some phase of work the others would necessarily have to be worked into the plans.

"I think it would be a wonderful asset to the city of Cameron", Balke asserted, "But I don't want to do it for one person if I can't do it for everyone."

He concluded that he thought that Culpepper should meet with the council stating, in writing, just what he would do and then the council would be better able to come to a definite conclusion.

Schiller said "I think it can be worked out" adding that he didn't think the Council could really talk about it until all the councilmen were present and could meet as a body with Culpepper.

Kelly offered the council a Christmas present in the form of a free estimate of the needed figures for the developments facilities to be furnished by the city.

Another suggestion broached by Kelly was on the subject of utilites furnished by private companies in the city. He said that most of the Utitlity Companies are accustomed to making applications for place ment of utility outside facilities to a council. If this is done, he pointed out, it would clean up the situation of street-cuts, poles in the way etc.

The only other matters involved a bond by plumbers working in Cameron and the approval of a maintenance contract for the state Highway Department's maintenance of Farm To Market road 1600 within the city limits.

Councilmen adjourned with a Merry Christmas to all.

TRADE IN CAMERON

Milam Co. Designated as Drouth Area

an area where eligible farmers can obtain emergency loans from the Farmers Home Administration has been extended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture until December 31, 1955, Roy M. Wright, County Supervisor, said today.

Applications are made at the Farmers Home Administration county office. The office for Milam county is located in the Henderon Building in Cameron. In applying for assistance a farmer must certify that because of substantial losses from the adverse weather conditions, or due to economic factors, he is unable to get from local private or cooperative sources the necessary financing to continue his normal operations.

Eligibility of applicants is determined by the Farmers Home Administration county committee. Committeemen for Milam county are: Ed O. Pagel of Route 2, Buckholts, Frank J. Jahn of Route 1, Burlington, and Ralph Avrett of Route 2, Thorndale.

There loans may be made for the purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer, and for other essential farm and home operating expenses. Emergency loans may not be made to pay existing debts. Ordinarily, emergency loans to meet current operating and living expenses are expected to be repaid out of the year's income. Amounts advanced for crop production purposes are repayable when the income from the sale of the crops produced with the loans is received. No loan is made unless it appears that an applicant has reasonable prospects for success.

The Government obtains the best security obtainable for each loan made, including a first lien on all crops to be produced with the loan.

an editorial

Back in the 1[illegible] and early 1900's it was common place for every family to have an out-house, indeed it was one of the necessities. In this day and age however, in most towns, the "half-moon" is a thing of history and its only association with todays living is the subject of ribald jokes.

Most towns and their councils have been foresighted enough to see that inside facilities not only improve the looks of the community, but are an added safeguard to the health of their people and give welcome relief from odors and insects.

These regulations imposed by city councils all over the United States placed an immediate financial difficulty on some of the families in the city limits, but they enforced their ordinances, knowing that rules anud laws are made to benefit the majority of the people.

Many, many houses in Cameron still have outside facilities, some from necessity, but most through the laxity of enforcing the city ordinances.

Rules are made to be obeyed. Ordinances are made to be followed. If there is to be no follow-through on ordinances deemed necessary for the health and well-being of the town then the council is either going to far — or not far enough.

They should make up their minds and enforce or revoke their ordinances and keep their apparent motton "let nature take it's course" in mind at their coming meetings.

Winter Grain Mite Present On Farms Here

These mites are occurring on winter grain crops on a number of farms in Milam County. It is very difficult to detect the mites but their presence is first indicated by a silvery appearance of the leaves and later the tips of the leaves turn brown. The infested plants are stunted but it is doubtful that the yield of grain will be increased by controlling this pest. However, control measures may be advisable when additional grazing is desired or when the stand of young grain is threatened.

The mites are very small, 1-32 to 1-16 inch long, adults have reddish-orange legs and their bodies are dark brown with bluish coats. They feed during the night but may be found around the base of the plants and under clods of dirt during the day. Cold weather is an incentitive to reproduction and growth of the mite. They exist through the summer as eggs on the old plants and hatch the following fall. These mites are more likely to be found in fields that have been in small grain for two or more years.

Either parathion or TEPP applied at the rate of ¼ pounds of actual material per acre will control the mite. Mix one pint of emulsion concentrate of 25 per cent parathion or 20 per cent TEPP or ½ pint of 40 per cent TEPP in the amount of water the sprayer puts out per acre. One application should give good control.

John R. Caffey Of Buckholts Enters Fat Stock Show

John R. Caffey, young agriculturist of Buckholts, Texas has entered two steers in the junior livestock division of the 1955 Houston Fat Stock Show, February 2 through 13.

An outstanding steer show of approximately 700 animals is expected, John Kuykendall, livestock manager, said. Entries are being limited to that number in order to provide space for junior breeding cattle which is a new division this year.

Last year's champion was shown by Dayton Crenwelge of Fredericksburg who pocketed $12,500. when the prize animal was bought at auction by Edgar Brown of Orange. Houston has paid as high as $18,800. for the champion in former years.

Through the 1953 action sales, the young farm and ranch exhibitors took home $261,157. for livestock and poultry entries. Total premium cash awards offered in the junior steer division this year will amount to $3,146.

Several New Wells Reported In Milam County

The oil operation in Milam county is becoming quite an industry with seven recently complete shallow wells in the area about three miles due south of Minerva, in the original O'Neill lease territory, and drilling slated on several other wells in that immediate vicinity.

Some of the unconfirmed oil strikes in the area include the completion of a well on the L. B. "Boozy" Dukes land about two weeks ago; with drilling reported completed on the C. C. Calton lease, which is just south of the O'Neill property; completion of a well on the T. P. & L. property west of the O'Neill lease and the location of a new well on Dr. E. H. O'Neill's property.

The Derrick for the 9,000 footer on the Texas Gulf Sulphur company's property is slated to be erected this week.

It is reported that drilling on the S. R. Fuller land, eight miles North-west of Cameron has reached the 2,250 foot mark in a deepening job started earlier this month.

Insects Still Damage Plants In Cool Weather

In spite of the cool weather, insects are damaging many of the fall garden plants, especially tender greens, turnips and other leafy vegetables, according to J. D. Moore, Milam County Agent. Plant lice (aphids) are small green insects found attached to the leaves. During mild weather worms may also be found in winter greens.

A good general purpose insecticide to use is a mixture of equal parts of 5 per cent DDT, 10 per cent Chloradane and rotenone dust. This material should be applied as a dust during the drier part of the day which is around the noon hours. The reason for dusting during the dry part of the day is for a better circulation of the dust material in and under the plant leaves. Since the insecticide kills the aphid or lice by contact, it is necessary to get a good distribution of the insecticide throughout the plants. If necessary, repeat the treatment in 5 to 7 days.

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER DISCOVERS NEW YEAR IS ABOUT HERE, CLAIMS HE CAN STAND IT IF IT CAN STAND HIM

(Editor's not: The Little River Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm approach of the new year, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editar:

I forget what it was, but I got busy doing somthing back in the Fall and neglected to keep tearing the pages off the calendar out here and had no idea 1954 was about over until I picked up a copy of a newspaper yesterday and discovered the New Year is swoopin down on us.

The thing I like about the changes in the years is that they keep coming without any effort on my part, if I could go about my businesss know in my farm wasgon na keep operatin as regularly as the years, life would be a whole lot smoother out here.

But since there ain't no argument about it, 1955 is upon us. I have been taking stock of the situation and making a few plans and predictions for the new year.

Considering everything, I ain't usre what kind of year 1954 has been, but the way I get around this is I don't consider everything, just pick out the times and situations I prefer and when you do this you can make a year turn out pretty good.

This past year was about like I expected it to be, and I don't look for any changes in 1955. When a man doesn't work his head off on a crop, he ain't let down when he winds up not making anything. Some people expect too much out of life, some expect too little. Me, I've come to hold myself in check, and discovered long ago that what some people call abnormal times is really 100 per cent normal times.

I've dug in as well as a man can dig in out here, and on the eve of a new year I say, let er rip. I can stand the new year about as well as it can stand me. Send me a new calendar and I'm all set.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

New TV Program To Start In Texas

A new kind of television program will originate in Texas on January 3, but the public won't see it.

It will be the first Texas-originated closed circuit TV show-- a program televised in Texas and traveling over TV network cables to special meeting places--and will be seen by approximately 4,000 Humble Oil & Refining Company dealers and salesmen scattered over the state.

From the WFAA - TV Studio in Dallas, the program will be channeled into the coaxial cable for outlets in 10 Texas cities. In auditoriums and halls in these 10 cities, some 4,000 sales personnel form all service stations and Humble offices in nearby areas will gather to view the company's new 1955 sales program as outlined by company officials.

Cities scheduled to receive the closed circuit program are Dallas, San Antonio, San Angelo, Texarkana, Temple, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Houston and Austin--all on the coaxial cable. Simultaneous live programs are also slated at Pharr, Tyler and Corpus Christi--where TV cable facilities are not available.

"The use of closed circuit television programs may set a trend in industrial and business meetings of the future," F. A. Watts, Humble's sales manager, pointed out.

"Humble has always held sales meetings each Spring. They have involved hundreds of miles of travel and considerable delay," Watts pointed out. "By taking advantage of this new medium, we are able to bring our sales program to our entire force at the same moment in the first week of the new year."

Watts explained that Texas has been included on closed circuit TV programs before--such as sporting events cabled to theaters for commercial showings -- but never before has a closed circuit TV program originated in the state.

News About Your Social Security

The 1954 Amendments to the social security law provide for increased payments for future beneficiaries.

People who start getting old-age and survivors payments in the future will get higher benefits than they would have received under the old law.

The increases, however, will not be figured in the same way as the increases to families already receiving monthly checks. The amount of a retured worker's benefit is figured by first finding his average earnings from his official social security record.

From his average earnings, using a formula given in the law, the amount of the worker's retirement payment is figured. Benefits to other members of the family are figured from the amount of the worker's benefit. The new law increases benefit payments for workers retiring in the future in three ways:

1. By counting earnings up to $4200.00 a year commencing in 1955.

2. By dropping out some of the years of lower earnings (or no earnings) in figuring average earnings.

3. By using a new formula for figuring the worker's benefit from his average earnings. Our next article will cover these features in more detail.

Humble TV To Show Radar Control On Review Program

Some motorists will find The Humble Company's Texas in Review especially interesting next week. This is because the program's featured film will show how and why the highway department uses radar control stations to catch speeders.

And there will be other films of interest on the TV program. There will be pictures of the Convair Recreation Clubs and "Operation Gopher", showing how engineering students at Texas University built a recreation room under a building on the campus.

Other items include the Houston SPCA in action, and a review of events filmed for Texas in Review during 1954.

E & R Church To Show Film Dec. 31

The United Evangelical and Reformed Church of Ben Arnold will show a film about people who live amid tradition and folklore in the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. The showing will be held on December 31, at 8:30 p. m. following a 7:30 Worship Service.

The 16mm sound-color documentary, titled "Southern Highlanders" tells of a transformation of these people from their backwoods mode of life to that of modern living and mechanized farming. The film was produced by Ford Motor Company.

At the same time "White Thunder" a documentary film about one of nature's most spectaular attractions, Niagara Fall, will also be shown. This film shows unique camera shots of the Cave of the Winds, Horseshoe Falls, the Great Whirlpool and the well-known tour boat, Maid of the Mist, highlight the film.

The public is cordially invited to spend New Year's eve with the United Congregation, to worship, to enjoy these movies, and the re creation following.

Time To Take Soil Analysis And Build Land

The harvest season in Texas is nearly complete and that means a slackening of farm activities. But it is not too early, says M. K. Thorn extension agricultural chemist, to being planning for next year's operations.

A first, according to Thornton, is to take and submit soil samples for analysis. Knowing what the soil needs in the way of plant food and organic matter is an important part of any soil building program, says the specialist, and a sure answer to "sick" soil is a complete analysis.

He cites the outstanding corn yields made this year by farmers who followed soil treatment recommendations as examples of the value of soil testing. The top yield in the State was made by Doyce Turner of Lamb county who posted an all-time record high of 204.3 bushels of corn an acre. It was grown on land which had been tested. Organic matter was supplied by the application of three tons of cotton bur compost an acre. An application of 200 pounds of 16-20-0 fertilizer was recommedned at planting time and a side dressing of nitrate later but the corn grew so fast by side dressing time it was too tall to make the application.

If soil samples are submitted now ahead of the spring rush, Thornton says the recommended fertilizers can be purchased and stored. They'll be on hand when needed and there'll be no question about getting the kinds and amount needed, he adds.

Doing the job now is insurance against not doing it when the rush of farm work begins with spring operations and too, results will be available for planning next year's cropping program.

Local county agricultural agents can supply information and the blanks which should be sent to the soil testing laboratory with each sample.

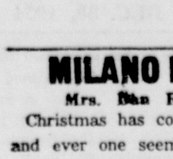
Corn Season Brings A Tooth-Cleaning Problem

The cornstalks are waving in the fields, and soon those ripe, golden ears will be piled high on nearly every dinner and picnic table in the land.

Good eating while it lasts, but like steak and lamb chops and so many other good things, corn-on-the-cob leaves toothbrushing problems after the last bite.



In fact, bits and pieces often lodge in crannies between the teeth where a toothbrush can't reach them at all.

Here's a tip for comfort and cleanliness when this happens to you. Just twist a 16 or 18-inch length of dental floss around the first two fingers of each hand, stretch the floss across thumbs or forefingers, and draw gently back and forth between your teeth. You may be surprised at how easily those troublesome food particles can be removed this way.

35.7 Per Cent Increase Soil Conservation

In a recent survey, more than nine thousand farmers were asked: "Have the conservation practices applied on your farm been effective in increasing production? Ninety - eight per cent answered "Yes". The average production increase for all major crops was 35.7 percent.

There are many reasons to practice a conservatior cropping system. The reason that most farmers think of is to increase production which increases the farm income. A conservation cropping system prevents erosion and at the same time improves the structure of the soil and allows the soil to take more water and hold the water for plant use. Grasses and legumes do an excellent job of improving soil structure.

When crop residues are left on the ground surface the soil is protected from rain-drop splash and from the hot summer sun. The force with which the rain-drop hits the bare soil is enough to cause soils low in organic matter to seal over, preventing the water from entering. If the rain drop is permitted to fall on the old crop residue, the water will flow onto the ground without the pounding force and it will go into the soil and be stored for future plant use.

During the hot summer months temperatures of bare surface soil often gets to 130 degrees F. The temperature under a good cover will be about 100 degrees F. At tempeatures above 100 degrees F. all soil organisms activitiy ceases. The high temperature also drives out more moisture.

Eggs, Citrus Fruit To Dominate Next Month's Food List

For the third consecutive month, meats dominate the plentiful food list. Included are heavy turkeys, beef, pork, halibut, haddock, shrimp and canned tuna.

January features for this area, however, according to the USDA, are eggs, fresh and processed oranges, grapefruit and tangerines.

Dairy products and rice remain in good supply. So do walnuts almonds and filberts, raisins, lard, vegetable fats and oils.

The plentiful foods list is based upon a survey made each month in the major trade areas of the state by the southwest food distribution division, Agricultural Marketing Service, Dallas. Foods shown to be in heavy enough supply are palced on the list.

Need For Farm Records Important

The need for accurate records of farm production in 1955 was cited here this week by an extension farm management specialist.

C. H. Bates, says under present economic conditions farm records are becoming more important each year. The new social security law and the recent soil and water conservation provision both require such records. Farm records also are imperative in figuring income tax.

Bates says records show the weaknesses in any farming operation. They reflect the year's farming activity and should be the basis for expanding or curtailing certain farm practices and cropping systems.

Records are easily kept and will prove invaluable when it comes time to evaluate each operation.

The first of a new year, says the specialists, is an ideal time to start records. Several handy record books are available. Bates suggests the Texas Farm Record Book. It gives inventories for land, farm improvements, machinery and equipment, livestock, crops, feed on hand, farm sales and expenses, farm products used at home, and a summary of the year's business.

County agricultural agents can furnish information on how to order this book. Or it may be bought directly from the Exchange Store, College Station, for only 30 cents.

TREATING TRENCH MOUTH

By Science Features

During World War I many soldiers suffered from an infectious mouth disease that they promptly called "trench mouth" in honor of their living conditions. Since 1918, trench warfare has become obsolete but the disease, more properly known as Vincent's infection, is still common today.

The exact cause is not clear, but "trench mouth" usually results from crowded, unsanitary conditions, poor oral hygiene, vitamin deficiency and fatigue. These facts can be found at home as well as on a battlefield.

Vincent's infection appears abruptly, producing a painful inflammation of the gums which become very sensitive and bleed easily. The infection can destroy much of the tissue around the teeth and also affect other areas of the mouth.

In treating the disease the gums are always cleaned. With the discovery of antibiotics, penicillin was successfully used but now two New York dentists report that terramycin gives even better results. The investigators tested the wide-range drug in 42 cases of Vincent's infection. Gum areas of 39 patients that were treated with terramycin began healing within 48 hours while unmedicated sections took much longer. Periodic dental check-ups can prevent development of this infectious disease. There is little reason today why trench mouth should not become as outdated as trench warfare.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

trapping further to decrease labor requirements.

In order to get better statistical comparisons of the differences between families and breeding groups Leo now has 1,800 candidate pullets in laying cages. By random assortment of the pullets in the cages, he gets a better sampling of the environment, which he hopes will permit him to select the better families with greater accuracy. These cages also offer certain advantages in comparing the efficiency of different breeding methods.

Since much of the annual income to a breeder of egg-type birds is for chicks from females being trapped to determine their first year performance, it is necessary that he obtain fertile eggs from these birds. He has turned this project over to his son Alton, who artificially inseminates the birds in cages. Males are maintained in specially built cages somewhat larger than those for the females. Cages for maintaining surplus breeding males for floor operators may soon become popular.

Mr. Fuchs has developed a corps of loyal flock owners who year after year produce hatching eggs for him. Because of the long warm season in the South, if a satisfactory supply of high quality eggs is to be maintained during the summer, a quality egg program is necessary.

Due to the seasonal demand for flock replacement chicks, eggs produced by his flock owners during much of the summer must be sold as commercial eggs rather than as hatching eggs. These are good quality market eggs. To insure maximum price for quality eggs to his flock owners and other egg producers in the Cameron area, Mr. Fuchs has put in refrigerated storage facilities and developed a graded egg market in the Cameron community.

This has resulted in an average differential of about 5-6 cents per dozen more for graded eggs than these flock owners formerly received when their eggs were sold on a current receipt basis. This has resulted in better satisfied hatchery supply flock owners.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Geller and son, Rodney Jr. spent Christmas in the Duke home.

Alcoa Scholarship Award For Children Of Employees To Continue In 1955

The Alcoa Foundation college scholarship award program for children of employees at the Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works will be continued in 1955, J. D. Harper, Works Manager has announced.

The company-wide program was established last year by the Foundation to be administered locally by a Sponsoring Committee. Actual selections are made by a group of educators. The first scholarships were awarded in 1954 to 40 children of Alcoa employees representing 29 Alcoa plants and offices in 16 states and the District of Columbia. The number of scholarships for each company location is based on the number of employees per plant, operation area, or company unit.

Last year the Rockdale Works was provided on $2,000 scholarship by the Foundation. Each winner receives an annual grant of $500 to be applied to his expenses at the college of his choice. This amount will be granted each year for four years so long as the recipient maintains high scholastic and personal standards.

Because of the time required to examine applications and personal data from candidates, all applications for the 1955 award must be in the hands of the Selection Board by January 15.

Forms are available to Alcoans from their supervisor and the completed form should be turned over to the student's school principal. He in turn will submit it to the Selection Board.

Winner of the scholarship award in 1954 at Rockdale was Lee Hyder son of Frank Hyder, Superintendent of the Mechanical Department here. Young Hyder is studying engineering at Rice Institute.

To participate in the program, an applicant must be the child or legally adopted child of an Alcoa employee who has one year's continous service with company. He also must be in the upper ½ of his graduation class or have a C-plus average or better during the time it takes him to obtain his high school diploma, whichever is lower.

As a part of the selection procedure candidates are required to take the College Board Examination. The eligibility of these candidates and selection of the final winner is made by the Selection Board. This group is composed entirely of men trained in the field of education. Serving on the Board are School Superintendents H. H. Pruett, Milam County, chairman; T. H. Johnson, Taylor; W. C. Geissom, Rockdale; W.T. HAnes, Cameron; A. P. Kleinschmidt, Lexington; and Ray Dorsett, Thorndale.

To receive a scholarship grant an applicant must successfully complete the entrance requirements and be accepted by an accredited college or university which grants a bachelors degree.

Cotton, Peanut Allotments Are Mailed By ASC

Cotton and peanut allotments for 1955 have been mailed to producers However, those farmers who do not have an allotment and desire to plant cotton or peanuts in 1955 may file an application for a "new" farm allotment, according to the Milam County ASC office.

Final date for accepting applications for new cotton allotments is February 25, 1955.

Final date listed to accept applications for "new" peanut allotments is February 4, 1955.

Those farmers who do not intend to plant their allotments may release all or part of their allotments at the ASC office to be reapportioned to other producers requesting an increase in their allotments.

Producers who release acreage will receive credit on their history record, just as though cotton or peanuts were planted on his farm. More to retain eligibility for an old growers allotment, the alloted crop must have been planted during one of the three years 1953-54-55.

Soil Compaction Limits Crop Production

Soil compaction someday may rank with erosion as a factor limiting crop production, says Jack H. Barton, extension soil and water conservationist.

Land used for intensive cultivation and grazing is in greatest danger.

Compaction of the soil, says Barton, begins to limit crop production when the soil particles are pushed together so closely the movement of air and water through the soil is restricted. Plant roots upon reaching the compacted layer -- or hard pan -- begin to grow in a lateral direction.

Soil compaction is often associated with clay and clay loam soils. The conservationist says they also form in sandy and medium organic type soils.

"Best remedy for this condition is to work with nature and not against her," says Barton. He urges farmers to simplify tillage operations to decrease the number of trips over a field with heavy equipment. Avoid working or grazing fields that are too wet.

A good rotation system will increase the organic content of the soil. Well-fertilized, deep rooted crops will help crack the hard pan, Barton says.

A compacted soil holds less water and is more subject to erosion than a soil without this hard layer, he says.

B & P W Has Christmas Party With Mrs. Flinn Giving A Christmas Story

"The Believer", a story concerning a little orphan girl doomed to live in one of the poorer orphanages but holding on tightly to her belief in Santa Claus was the subject of Mrs. Eber Flinns appropriate address at the Business and Professional Women's Christmas party this week.

In her story, written by Margaret Carlisle, Mrs. Flinn compellingly told of the little girl whose belief was so great and strong that, through the aid of a newspaper, all of the orphans wishes came true on Christmas with a shower of gifts from individuals and organizations, proving that there really is a Santa Claus.

This annual party, held in the Milam Coffee Shop, had 34 members and eight guests present, with the main decoration supplied by a tree decorated in festive Christmas ornaments.

The T-shaped banquet table was linen covered with a green and red fluted paper rope at the center, trailing the entire length of the table.

Central arrangement on the head table, where the officers and speakers were seated, was a decorative Christmas display of greenery and Christmas balls, a matching arrangement of blue cedar was placed on the piano.

Mrs. Lenore Bickett, president, acted as mistress of ceremonies and introduced Mrs. Ida Bell Lewis, past president of the club and present district director, who gave the invocation. The guest speaker was then introduced by gave the invocation. The guest speaker was then introduced by Miss Bickett.

Following the singing of Christmas carols by the entire group, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Houston at the piano, and a turkey dinner, those present exchanged gifts from under the tree with Lois Randolph and Miss Bickett in charge of distribution.

Those decorating the tree and making arrangements were Miss Bickett, Miss Randolph, Mrs Warner, Mary Randolph, Ruby Fogle, Florence Markham and Hilda O'Neill.

Business & Farm Firm Partners

A news story from one of the major automobile manufacturers does a splendid job of showing the interdependence of agriculture and industry.

On the one hand, industry depends on the farmer to consume vast quantities of the goods it produces. Without the vast agricultural market for manufactured wares of endless varieties, the assembly lines would slow annd factories would close.

On the other hand, industry is a first - class farm customer, as the news release vividly shows.

This single company annually absorbs the yield of 78,000 acres of cotton, along with 3,000,000 pounds of wool, in order to make the upholstery for its cars and trucks. It needs, each year, 37,000 acres of soybeans for body paint and 40,000 acres of flaxseed for linseed oil. Derivatives from about 48,000 acres of corn are used for such things as adhesive agents in gray iron casting cores.

All in all, it would take 2,500 "average" American farms to make up the hundreds of thousands of acres needed to supply the wool, leather, cotton and other agricultural products that enter in its manufacturing operations.

And this, mind you, is but one company, albeit a large one. Farm and factory are firm partners in this complex modern world.

New Army Film Shows Details Of Training Here And Abroad

In the opening scene of "This Is Your Army," the color - documentary film to show at the Milam Theatre December 30 and 31, the query is posed, "How does the Army go about achieving its mission?" In the fifty-five minutes that follow, the audience gets the answer to that important question. It is not a general, broad answer, but one that pin-points almost every detail that can be shown without taking security risks.

This film which Movietone News produced in cooperation with the United States Army, proceeds to show innumerable bases of operation both here in the United States and in Europe and Asia as well. The cameras went behind the scenes of basic training to show the audience what goes into the making of a great and competent soldier. Once having answered this question, it travels with the men as they proceed to specialization schools for further training. School for artillery and engineer training, parachute jumping, radar and signal operations, and army aviation and mechanics are just some of the special phases shown in the film.

A particular emphasis is placed on realism in combat training and the many weapons the basic trainee must learn to operate efficiently. Highlight of these is the simulated attack under actual fire -- using real bullets -- which the trainee goes through.

Other highlights of the film include new guided missiles which the army has developed and the atomic cannon, whose power almost matches that of the atomic bomb. All this and much more -- with the added advantage of color photography makes "This Is Your Army" a grade-A documentary.
